Warnock, Churba join forces to open Interior Design Studio

POCATELLO — Jane Warnock and Alesha E. Churba have joined together to develop Interior Design Studio within the firm of Myers Anderson Architects, PLLC. Both are project managers, with experience and backgrounds in commercial and residential design. Warnock joined Myers Anderson in March 2007, following six and a half years of employment with Staprans Design, Portola Valley, Calif. She earned her B.S. in business management and psychology, with an emphasis in ergonomics and commercial design. She worked in New York City at Knoll International as a project manager. After Knoll, she worked for CADSANA as a project and showroom manager at the International Design Center in Long Island City, N.Y. She has done custom residential design in Park City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Coeur d'Alene and in Aspen, Colo. At Myers Anderson, Warnock has worked on the Whitman Hotel renovation, Potelco United Credit Union and Idaho State University Campus Recreation Center.

Churba has returned to Myers Anderson after a leave of absence. She has achieved an allied member of the American Society of Interior Design status and she is an allied member of the American Institute of Architects.

She has more than nine years of practical interior design experience and experience in project management, including the new Idaho Central Credit Union administrative building in Chubbuck. She has earned degrees in design drafting technology and consumer economics with emphasis in Interiors, textiles, drafting and marketing. She has completed extensive training and experience in commercial finishes and design, residential kitchen and bathroom planning and design, and project management.

Past commercial projects have included various remodel projects at Idaho State University, School District 25, Bear Lake Memorial Nursing Home, the Ireland Bank on Yellowstone in Pocatello and the Franciscan Cre-Act School.
